Press Release

Ben Brown Fine Arts is proud to present The Four Seasons: AUTUMN, our quarterly exhibition of works from the gallery that embody the season. These exhibitions help us transcend the quotidian to reflect on the season and all that it symbolizes and stirs in our collective memories, emphasizing the inextricable connection between nature and art. Autumn traditionally signifies a balance of darkness and light, bounty, change, impermanence and perhaps most notably, its aesthetics: the dazzling colours of autumn leaves. We have selected disparate works from our inventory, ranging from embroideries by Alighiero Boetti to works featuring an iconic apple as their subject matter by Gavin Turk and Vik Muniz, to Hank Willis Thomas's Endless Column of rugby balls as the autumn Internationals schedule takes shape, to works illuminating transitions in the natural world by artists Miya Ando, Nobuyoshi Araki, Rob and Nick Carter, José Parlá, Hiroshi Sugimoto and Ena Swansea, to celebrate The Four Seasons: AUTUMN.
